MANPOWER

(Canadian Business)

A plebiscite faces us. Bitter are the arguments over whether or not the Government shall be released from its anti-conscription pledge. Politicians are bolting their party. New groups are gathering. But the dramatic quality of the overseas conscription question tends to overshadow completely the broader problem of manpower in general. Men are wanted on the farms, and the need of farm labor will grow more urgent. There are now insufficient men lumbering in the woods. A constant flow of new workmen is required by the war industries to make guns and build the ships to carry them, and the armed forces clamor for recruits for home defence and service abroad. Manpower—including womanpower—directed to essential tasks is what will overcome the enemy, and while the noblest job of all is serving one's country under fire, let us not forget the drudgery and struggle which is necessary to forge the vital weapons of war. The armed forces need more and better tools. Britain needs food. Consequently, while conscription for military service overseas is one of the more important aspects of the present problem, the other needs for selective service should not be thrown out of perspective.

One thing Alberta can boast about its weather is that it is consistent—consistently unsettled.

Now we have something else which is going to make us bite our nails. If Lt.-General McNaughton becomes premier of Canada who is going to fill his big shoes?

Farmers and Maximum Price
Regulations

All of us are now subject to regulations which would have seemed impossible three years ago. Undoubtedly we shall be required to conform to many more; and who will complain?

It is quite a job keeping posted on regulations affecting business transactions, and many farmers must be uncertain as to their own responsibilities when selling their own produce or buying from others.

Farmers should know that transactions between primary producers of agricultural products, involving their own produce, are exempt from price ceiling regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Order No. 102 defines these exemptions and, in part, reads as follows:

"(a) sales, exchanges, or barter of hay, grain, seed, seed potatoes, onion bulbs, farm implements or repair parts, machinery or repair parts, sacks, fencing, fence posts, milk cans, stock-lings, nursery stock, cordwood, fertilizers, bees, bee supplies, livestock, masts, poultry, poultry products, farm-made dairy products, wool, hides and other agricultural products and supplies;

"(b) custom-milling, seed cleaning and other agricultural services."

The above provisions, however, do not apply to sales, exchanges or barter made for purposes of resale. All resales of products or articles are subject to maximum price regulations.

NO AID FOR NAZIS

Observers pointed out the latest peace trial balloon was carefully timed to take full advantage of the natural feeling of gloom in Allied countries over Pacific area reverses. They added that if it in any way retards production, particularly of aid to Russia, that it will be just that much in favor of Hitler's smug offensive plan.

This source said, however, he was informed the concern of the German and French industrialists over the possibility of Japanese seizure of world markets is real.

It was prompted particularly by the fact Japan has just informed Germany that, despite the Malayan and Netherlands East Indies successes, Japan will not be in a position to spare raw materials to Germany from those captured areas for at least two years, the informant said.

Japan was said to have insisted the Netherlands scorched earth policy had been so thorough it would be six months before she could get any real benefits from the Indies, and that for a year and a half afterward the raw materials would be needed by the Japanese themselves.

The source said he was informed Hitler's position at home was strong at present because of disagreements within the factions that disagreed with the Fuehrer. Hitler exploited the situation fully and had even made capital of the Russian advance.

Four weeks ago, this source said, Goebbels called in propagandists and newspaper representatives and dictated a new policy of painting a dark picture for the German people. They are being told of reverses and warned of the consequence of defeat in the hope this will stimulate war production.

If every one of Canada's new army of wage-earners saves more, the country's effort toward winning the war will be greatly helped.

Every dollar you save means more labour and materials freed for making the war goods so urgently needed.

These savings, lent to the country in the purchase of War Savings Certificates or Victory Loan Bonds—lent to intensify Canada's war effort—will bring victory—and peace—nearer.
